

The Best Parenting Resource

I. Our Answer - How can I know if a book is good unless I read it?

- The more important question I can imagine is, “Does this book contain a jumble of cultural ideas and biblical proof-texts, or is it a book that identifies and clarifies God’s teaching and help you achieve His will for your life?” This is basically the same duty as a pastor/teacher. We’ve been tasked with feeding the Lord’s sheep in the green pastures of His fertile Scriptures.
- Well, it’s generally pretty simple. Can you trust the author? And, if you’re not familiar with the author, can you trust the person suggesting the book?

II. Our Promise

- TLP wants to be one of your most trustworthy sources for Truth in parenting. We know it takes time to earn trust, but we promise to do our best to earn yours by staying faithful to God and His Word.

III. Our Suggestion

- Paul Tripp has written some of my all-time favorite books on Christian living. He writes not only from a love for God and people, but from a significant knowledgeable base. He’s been teaching and counseling and speaking and writing for decades, and the Lord has blessed him with keen insight, a clear writing style, and penetrating explanations and applications of the Bible. His new book, “Parenting” is my absolute favorite parenting book.
- “This will not be a book of practical strategies for dealing with children at the various ages of their development. This book will not provide practical steps for dealing with the kinds of things every parent faces. This is meant to be a reorienting book. It is meant to give you a new way of thinking about and responding to everything that will be on your plate as a parent. This book is meant to give you vision, motivation, renewed strength, and the rest of heart that every parent needs. It is written to give you the big gospel picture of the task to which your Savior has called you.”
